The Seol Trust is committed to creating a culture where openness, goodwill, tolerance and treating people with dignity and respect is central to how we work. We value honesty and transparency and support staff, participants, partner organisations, and members of the public to report concerns of any nature. We believe that getting feedback about what we do and how we do it helps us to assess and continuously improve our services. In the event of an unintended or unexpected incident that results in harm or death the Duty of Candour policy will come into immediate effect.
